Looking upon this work, as Mechanics of the United States, blush with shame—as Mechanics of the Metropolis of the West, rejoice that you do no such work.

Now for comparisons. Visit, if you please, corner Vine and Fourth streets. There see the work of Western mechanics—that five story fron front building being erected for T. W. Sprague & Co.'s clothing warehouse. Behold the handiwork of our men-the finish-the perfection of the work. "Comparisons," like these, are not odious-except to the East.

Who of us forgets that a few years ago α great fire alarm bell was imported from the East for our city? That bell proved a failure —was of begus composition, and leaden tone. When last seen here, that bell was on a freight car, draped in mourning, bound for Troy, New York. By the advice of Miles Greenwood, the job was then given out to a Cincinnati mechanic, Mr. Hanks, who with fidelity, cast the bell now in use. It proves to be (and is so pronounced by all,) excellent in tone and of great sound in general. The East will yet find out Cincinnati has the best me-

MURDERED BY SPIRITUALISTS.-A few weeks since an eminent lawyer of this city, as much celebrated for his genial social qualities as his legal attainments, became dangerously ill. Dr. W., his family physician, was sent for, and under his skillful treatment the patient began rapidly to recuperate, and was finally considered as out of danger. While he was convalescing, however, he was called on by some spiritualist friends, who told him they had received a communication from the spirit-world, prescribing the proper course of treatment for his recovery. Contrary to the most urgent protestations of his physician, who told him most positively that if he took the course prescribed by the spiritualists he would certainly die, he yielded to the infatuation, and in less than two weeks was a corpse.

HAMILTON COUNTY DISTRICT COURT.

Motion to Haverage the Endown who or endown to Pleas in the Case of Janks Burss.—The event of Janks Burss.—The event of Janks Burss of Janks Indian Janks Janks Janks Burss was convicted in 16 Janks Dadge Carter having presided at the tring in the Common Pleas when Burns was convicted to 16 Janks of the beach with the other Judges white the argument to reverse the proceedings of that Court was in progress.

Mr. O'Donnell opened the argument in support of the motion, and stated the grounds on which it was band—anthly, that the verdict was against the cridence, and that the Court erred in the charge to the introduced in the transition, that the verdict was against the content urging that she contradicted herself, and was contradicted in important particulars by other witnesses for the State. The objection taken to the charge was, that the Judge told the jury, in considering the question of premeditation and deliberation, that an instant of time was sufficient to form a purpose to kill—not only to originate the purpose, but to deliberate and promeditate upon it. Counsel proceeded to contend that if any crime was committed by Burse if did not amount to anything Bigher than manistant of hyperal and that a sareful are amount to anything Bigher than manistant of the way committed by Burse if did not amount to anything Bigher than manistant of the way committed by Burse if the proceeding that a careful are amount to anything Bigher than manistant of the way committed by Burse if the proceeding that a careful are amount to anything Bigher than manistant of the way committed by Burse if the proceeding that a careful are amount of the way amount to a street and the proceeding to the part of the State—commenced the contendance of the part of the State—commenced the proceeding that a careful are amount of the part of the State—commen

Mr. Gaines replied on the part of the State-commenced by remarking that a careful examinating of the testimony would show that the remarks of the counsel who preceded him were not correct.

Judge Brinkerhoff-I may here state that I have myself read the cylenice in full, and that the other members of the Court will do so before the case is disposed of.

myself read the evidence in fall, and that the other members of the Court will do so before the case is disposed of.

Mr. Gaines—That being so it is scarcely necessary for me to refer to it; but in relation to the attack made on Bridget Duffy, it may be proper I should say that her truth and versely may be proper I should say that her truth and versely and that the strongest thing that could be said against her was that she was rather partial to aggainst her was that she was rather partial to aggainst her was that she was rather partial to aggainst her was that she was rather partial to aggainst her was that she was rather partial to aggainst the case of the charge of Judge Carter there was nothing in it that could prejudice the rights of the prisoner. But the Judge had been misquoted. His singulate was not "that an instant of time was sufficient to form a purpose to kill." On the confranty he said "that the purpose being formed, then the premodification and deliberation required by the said mistant of time." In using this language he kept within every decision in almost every State in the Union, and especially within all the decisions of the Union, and especially within all the decisions of the Union, and especially within all the decisions of the Counsel said that taking the testimony, and the plain inter of the law, the vertice must be regarded as a correct one. In considering the case he said he did not think the Court ought to interfere with the province of the jury in reference to the facts.

Judge Johnston, in the commencement of the cloaing argument on behalf of the prisoner, designated his client as a miserable, degraded old wrathinated his cono on bor statement, as he would feel his conscience to repreach him if he sont a dog to bed supperlessen the cridence of such a wretch.

The wound was midicted in one of three ways; he would allude to the most unlikely theory first namely; that Burns infilicted the stab white the two men stood erect grappling such other; the secret theory was that in this scutile between the deceased, a vigorous young man, and the prisoner, a long loosely-put-together frail old man, the latter was prostrate on the ground and fighting upwards at the time; the third theory, the true one as he believed was that the wound was received when Burke rose his leg and kicked Barns in the groun; the direction of the wound, stanting upwards, and the expressions which passed between the parties at the time. Burke renarking "Burns you have killed me," and the latter replying "you kicked me in the groin, and meant to kill me, "giving force to this theory. If Burns had been convicted of murder in the second degree, he (Judge J.) would have presented this mount to kill me, if you have to be a figure offence, the blessings of society were not so great to him out of doors as to make it an object.

In adverting to the charge of the Court on the subject of premeditation, the counsel referred to cases in the books, but especially in the Hible, Shakspeare, and various writers, to show that the instructions to the jury on this subject were not well founded in law, or the proper construction of language. To constitute murder in the first degree the statute says theremus the premeditation. And what is unditation? It is, according to the English books, to dwell on anothing in thought, to study or revolve any subject in the proper construction of language.
